

Meta Pacific / Identity & social design

THE NAME.
THE MARK.
THE MOVEMENT.

01 / Editorial

Bold meets light. One connected name.

Choose this for a flexible main identity across the website, proposals and social content.

area.lab / bene.studio

meta.pacific

Why this direction

The contrast makes both parts of the name readable without adding a separate symbol. It feels like a studio signature and leaves room for expressive photography and large headlines.

Motion principle

Keep the logo still. Let the image move behind it.

meta.pacific

A place.
Not just a pin.

Show the surroundings before the selling points.

meta.pacific

Room to look around.

A closer look at the spaces that connect.

02 / Signal

Upright. Bold. Underlined.

Choose this for a stronger campaign signature, particularly on film titles and high-contrast social posts.

stories / reform / line-led studio wordmarks

metapacific

Why this direction

The upright weight keeps the presence of Signal without the italic slant. A straight rule gives it a clear baseline and a graphic device that can carry into titles and transitions.

Motion principle

Draw the rule across once, then hold the wordmark.

03 / Studio

A compact MP mark with a quiet name lockup.

Choose this when small signatures, corner placements and production credits matter most.

THE LAB / bene.studio

MP | meta pacific

Why this direction

This replaces the wide stacked block. The initials give the identity a compact anchor; the divider and lighter full name keep the complete lockup clear without stretching the letters.

Motion principle

Reveal the initials, then the divider and full name.
