

09 / Existing-content creative review

Keep the work. Sharpen the story.

Three published Instagram pieces, treated as work submitted for creative review.

Three existing pieces. Three different briefs.

Rote beachfront land

Meta Pacific / Rote

Works

The aerial, road and highlighted land make the setting legible. The property has a clear subject.

Breaks the proposed system

Area, access and the offer compete for the first read. The viewer needs a sequence, not every fact at once.

Change

Open on the location. Reveal access next. Put the approved area and offer on their own frame. Recheck current listing terms before publication.

Designer / editor brief

Aerial context / access / approved facts / enquiry. Keep one primary label in each shot.

Original post

Cover and caption review. Not a full playback or campaign-performance analysis.

Paradise Peak

Meta Pacific x theperfectionist.villa

Works

The illuminated villa and oversized moon give the cover a strong visual hook.

Breaks the proposed system

The treatment is highly stylised. It should not be mistaken for an unaltered site photograph.

Change

Keep the atmospheric opening, then follow with actual spatial footage. Make the transition from creative cover to project evidence clear.

Designer / editor brief

Hold the hero briefly. Use one simple project title. Let the walkthrough show the space.

Original post

Cover and caption review. Not a full playback or campaign-performance analysis.

Cocoon

alban.kibarer x metapacific_

Works

The circular architecture gives the project an immediate, memorable shape.

Breaks the proposed system

“In Bali”, project naming and the click prompt pull attention in different directions. Proposed space needs a clear source label.

Change

Lead with the project name and one idea. Label the visualisation, then show a real progress update when one is available.

Designer / editor brief

Project vision / what is proposed / dated progress / one next step.

Original post

Cover and caption review. Not a full playback or campaign-performance analysis.